It is a great pleasure to offer these introductory remarks, as the arrival of the yearbook represents a special moment on any campus. There is a unique anticipation in thumbing through the pages for the first time which creates an aura of enchantment. It is within this spirit of excitement that I invite you to read and relive the events of this last year.

The yearbook is more than a simple chronicle of what has transpired. To this year’s graduates, it is a bench mark which will record their entry into a new phase of life. As time passes, the photos and remarks captured on these pages will provide a rich background for all of us to understand better our past and more fully embrace the future. In a very true sense the yearbook is a family album for a brief period of community when many of our values and aspirations were forged.

As we relive these memories, I feel it is appropriate to reserve a few moments of thanks for the members of Circle K who worked so diligently to put the yearbook together. Circle K is dedicated to serving others, and they have admirably succeeded in that pledge by their willingness to undertake the many challenges of publishing our yearbook.

The road to academic excellence starts with . . .

Leisure,
Games And Friendship.
We got lost in the numbers game, but balanced our time between work and play.
Changing . . .

From the refurbished offices of the Social Science Building to the lofty corridors of Adams Humanities and the distinguished elegance of Hepner Hall . . .

the seemingly motionless SDSU campus is a mirror of change.
We encountered academic challenges . . .

and matured through intense studying.
A FIERY SALUTE

The 1982 Homecoming Game was a great win for the Aztecs. They beat Long Beach State, giving themselves new life in the WAC. A new Homecoming Queen, Karla Markus, was crowned to preside over the high-spirited game. The Marching Aztecs performed during halftime.

TO A HOMECOMING GAME . . .

An eventful time was enjoyed by "kids" of all ages at the Homecoming-Discovery Day on campus. From exhibits of colleges to international foods, from music to balloon rides and just "clowning around," Nov. 8 was a day to remember.

AND DISCOVERY DAY

THAT REACHED NEW HEIGHTS
The Associated Students held their annual elections of officers March 13-24, 1983. These elections featured: (clockwise from top left) signs on campus lawn endorsing candidates, a grassroots approach campaign including literature for each student, the announcement of results, computer cards for faster tally, and students voicing their opinions at the polls.
Few students can truly appreciate the challenges of the Greek lifestyle. From sponsoring fundraisers and sports events to social activities, the many Greek organizations on campus offer an abundance of opportunities for their members. Fraternity and sorority members grow closer together by sharing interests and experiences. Through commitments to serving the campus and community, members become loyal, well-rounded individuals within the family of Greeks.

With the addition of Tenochca in the Fall of 1982, SDSU has a total of seven residence halls. Together, the dormitories house 2200 students, many of whom are newcomers to the campus. Many activities are provided through dorm living, such as aerobic classes, barbecues, movies, parties, and dances with styles ranging from 50's to Western. These activities combine to make lasting friendships cultivating dorm life as an integral part of the college experience.

A significant part in the attainment of the undergraduate dance emphasis is the production of an actual dance concert. Each year several seniors participate in the performing as well as the planning of these concerts. Planning includes choreography, lighting, and props, as well as dance and sound arrangements. This emphasis provides dance students with invaluable preparation for a career in the arts.

Also organized for students with dance emphasis are the Choreographers Ensemble and the Graduate Dance Company. Both are comprised of students and faculty who choreograph and perform two pieces per year.

UNDERGRADUATE SOCIAL WORK ASSOCIATION

The purpose of the Undergraduate Social Work Association is to inform and educate social work students. USWA represents undergraduate interests to the school, and professional and community officials. USWA hopes to facilitate the educational goals of students by assisting the school in developing a significant educational experience.

TLATOANI

Tlatoani is taken from the Aztecs, meaning "elder." All student members are over 60 years of age, many working towards Master's degrees. Its prime purpose is to encourage mental activity in older persons, to sponsor intergenerational sharing of ideas, and to provide social activities and peer counseling for older students.

BAHA'I CLUB

The Baha'i Club has been active at San Diego State University since 1976. The purpose of the club is acquaint the campus community with the principles of the Baha'i Faith. These principles are as follows: Oneness of God, Oneness of Religions, Oneness of Mankind, Essential Harmony of Science and Religion, Universal Compulsory Education, Elimination of All Kinds of Prejudice, Abolition of Extremes of Wealth and Poverty, and Universal Peace upheld by a World Government. Through these and other teachings, we hope to foster World Peace and Unity for all Mankind. Thus the Baha'i Club has sponsored a series of informative seminars, informal gatherings and social activities in order to promote the consciousness of world unity.

 ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Alpha Gamma Delta has been very active this year. Our activities included dances, exchanges, Greek week, and rollerskating 10 miles down Mission Beach for J.D.F., our philanthropy. Along with our social activities we were also busy working on scholarship. Our chapter received the Panhelmenic award for the most improved G.P.A. and our fall pledges were awarded the best G.P.A.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT COUNCIL

The International Student Council plans and carries out programs for students from over 80 countries around the world. Programs this past year have included Orientation and welcoming events for incoming students from abroad, the American Friend program, the 26th Annual International Festival, Intercultural Exchange Camps, weekly International Coffee Hours, trips to the desert and beaches, “Back Home” Series, Lost and Found Sales, and Graduation Parties.

The programs are designed to increase understanding and appreciation of many cultures through working together, sharing and interaction with students from around the world.

The “Back Home” Series provides students from various countries opportunities to share what their life and culture is like back home, with slides, films, dances, displays, talks, etc.

Intercultural Exchange Camps are held in both fall and spring semesters.

Welcome parties, orientation programs and the American Friends program provide assistance for new international students when they first arrive on campus.
In an attempt to fulfill the Navy's increasing need for highly qualified and motivated officers, the Secretary of the Navy established the first joint Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps Program at the University of San Diego and San Diego State University. The program offers an excellent opportunity for local students to earn a commission in the Navy or the Marine Corps, a position that affords the young officer a chance for responsibility and advancement. While earning their bachelor's degrees, students are also encouraged to participate in numerous extracurricular activities either on campus or in conjunction with the N.R.O.T.C. unit.
